MY FIGHT TO SAVE VOEGLER

by

MORRIS L. ERNST

When Communists early this year arrested Robert Voegler, an American working in Hungary, his employers, the International Telephone and Telegraph Company, retained the distinguished lawyer, Morris Ernst, as his attorney. Ernst left immediately to defend his client. But it was not that easy; the Hungarian Government refused to admit Ernst. So the former personal assistant to President Roosevelt and Government advisor had to make his fight from Vienna. In this stirring account of his efforts to aid Voegler, Ernst will expose the methods adopted by Iron Curtain countries to prevent due course of justice. He will chronicle the means by which Communist-dominated courts make a travesty of fair play. In addition to his legal prowess, Ernst is also noted for his talent as a speaker.

NOMINATIONS FOR ANNUAL ELECTION ANNOUNCED

EUGENE LYONS, Chairman of the Nominations Committee (which includes WYTHE WILLIAMS, LUCIAN S. KIRTLAND, BEACH CONGER, MARY HORNADAY, JOSEPH LEVY and WILLIAM DOERFLINGER) this week announced the Committee had selected the following persons as candidates for the Annual Election to be held on Thursday, April 20, at Toots Shor's Restaurant:

For President - - - - - LOUIS P. LOCHNER, author and lecturer

For Vice Presidents - - - - - JOHN CHARLES DALY, radio and television commentator
 ADELAIDE KERR, Associated Press correspondent
 REAVIS O'NEAL, vice president, Carl Byoir & Associates

For Secretary - - - - - RALPH H. MAJOR, JR., Associate Editor, Coronet Magazine

For Treasurer - - - - - LEO BRANHAM, World Desk, Associated Press

For the Board of Governors - - HAL BOYLE, Associated Press columnist
 LAWRENCE BLOCHMAN, author and writer
 TEMPLE FIELDING, magazine writer
 RALPH JULES FRANTZ, New York Herald Tribune
 HENRY GELLERMANN, Transradio Press financial editor
 WILLIAM P. GRAY, senior editor, Life
 VICTOR LASKY, writer, New York World-Telegram and Sun
 PATRICIA LOCHRIDGE, Carl Byoir & Associates
 BEATRICE MATHIEU, New Yorker magazine
 CORNELIUS J. RYAN, Newsweek magazine
 GERALDINE SARTAIN, public relations, YWCA
 JOSEPH WURZEL, picture editor, Look magazine

President FRANK KELLEY also announced that other nominations for Club officers will be solicited from the membership at the Annual Meeting. Although the Nominations Committee voted to adopt only one slate, regular procedure provides for the placing of names of other candidates in nomination. This will definitely be encouraged, KELLEY said.

The outgoing administration also urgently requests members to submit suggestions prior to the Annual Meeting for the composition of various Committees. Members may either volunteer themselves or recommend colleagues for particular posts.

BONN DATELINE: Deputy PR chief for HICOG JACK M. FLEISCHER reports from Bonn that Ameri- can correspondents in Germany are living in a split-personality world; they hurtle back and forth between Bonn and Frankfurt as stories break in one place or the other. Most still live in Frankfurt and maintain offices there (except those more or less permanently stationed in Berlin) but some have settled down in Bonn...Pioneer settler in Bonn was Newsweek's Charles Brown. DON COOK of the New York Herald Tribune is nearby. Although more and more Allied newsmen are converging on Bonn, housing conditions present a terrible bottleneck. FLEISCHER alternates between the Allied High Commission headquarters in the one-time Petersburg luxury hotel perched on a hill above Koenigswinter and a press liaison office in Bonn. He suggests any OPC members in the neighborhood drop in on him at Fasanenstrasse 5 in Bad Godesberg...

ISRAELI, ARABS BOTH RESENT
UN ATTEMPTS TO FORCE POLICY
ON HOLY LAND, CONSIDINE SAYS

Both Arabs and Jews in the Holy Land would like to banish trade barriers and hostility, BOB CONSIDINE told 80 OPC members and guests at Toots Shor's Restaurant Wednesday. He also declared "the wonderful nature and spirit of the Israeli" was the key to Israel's future, which he said was "rosy" despite current obstacles. Much of Israel's hope, CONSIDINE reported, lies in the "generosity of the world's Jewry" and that financial help from the UJA was greatly appreciated. But the Jews in Israel are still wondering why fewer American Jews are coming to Israel when their aid is so badly needed. Right now Israel is handicapped by its own increasing population, CONSIDINE said; it's nearly doubled, while exports are only one-fifth of their imports, all pointing to a tight dollar situation. He reported that his talks with the people convinced him there was no power on earth, fiscal or otherwise, that could stop the Israeli from achieving their goal.
